SteelBuilt Curtainwall Infinity System

Almost any type of custom steel member—stainless, T-shape, box- and I-beam—can be used as the back mullion for this curtain wall, making it suitable for a wide range of commercial applications where clients need larger free spans and narrower sight lines. The steel construction enables expanses of glass extending to nearly 22'.

Woven-to-Size Grassweave and Papyrus

Among its other hand-bewn wall- and window coverings and textiles, Hartmann and Forbes has added 16 new designs the company can weave to order by hand on wood looms. The Woven-To-Size Grassweave and Papyrus collections feature details such as strips of water hyacinth and braids of natural ramie fiber woven into the shade. All are custom made on traditional looms to suit a window's dimensions up to 180" wide, without any seams.

PandaSelect™ All Aluminum LS.30

This wall of windows is designed to keep weather out while letting in daylight. The glazing is available in length runs of up to five panels (each can measure up to 10' x 5'), trimmed in 3/4"-wide aluminum frames to help maximize views. To guard against leaks, the floor track has a weep channel, which features the company's patented drainage technology. When opened, the windows can be pocketed or stacked to the left and right.

Simulated Divided Lights with EVOLVE Frames

ODL's Simulated Divided Lights (SDL) can be used to add historic style details to exteriors that are easy to install, maintain, and replace. This one features the company's EVOLVE rib construction frame made from FiberMate, a composite that reduces scalloping and warping in high-heat areas. The window casing comes pre-drilled and with screw-hole plugs for a seamless finish that can be painted or stained.
